Don Daseke's Medal of Excellence in Entrepreneurship

Don R. Daseke, president and CEO of Daseke Inc. and 1961 graduate of DePauw University, received the Robert C. McDermond Medal for Excellence in Entrepreneurship this May.

According to the DePauw news release this honor is awarded to individuals who play a key role in the formation or growth of an entrepreneurial business venture and/or assisted others in establishing entrepreneurial businesses and who have displayed creativity and innovation in entrepreneurial leadership.

An economics major at DePauw, Don Daseke earned his M.B.A. from the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business and graduated from the Harvard Business School's President's Program in Leadership. He was a founding director of the McDermond Center for Management & Entrepreneurship at DePauw.

During his acceptance speech, Don drove home two points: "invest in people" and "live by your passion." As a serial entrepreneur, Don Daseke has made his mark by building numerous businesses. His mantra has always been, "Invest in people." And it's a recipe that has succeeded time and time again. His current business endeavor — Daseke, Inc. — has grown to become the second largest open-deck trucking company in North America.

Congratulations Don on your outstanding achievements.

A Message from Rendy Taylor

Well Summer is here again and it is HOT in the South!!!! As usual a lot of families are heading out for vacation and the roadways are busy, so you guys watch out for the other autos on the road and as always driver defensively, expect the unexpected. People are excited about their vacations and are in a hurry to get to their destinations, so they can get started enjoying themselves. So be on the LOOK-OUT. This has been a very different start of the year compared to the past few; we had 3 consecutive weeks of ice and snow in the South during January and February, we have had rain (a lot of Rain) and flooding, tornados, these are just a few things that have caused you guys a lot of personal grief. Then onto the business front, some things have certainly been different this year compared to years past; the winter buys of building materials that we usually experience did not happen this year, the steel market is down due to a decrease in demand and the dumping of foreign steel into America, one of our major top 5 shippers had their plant go down for 4 plus weeks due to mechanical issues, and oil prices dropped, which got us all excited but we didn't expect the fallout with the oilfield work coming to a stop, which put more truck capacity back in the market along with the slowdown of shipments of material pertaining to the oil field industry. With all this being said and with a lot of actions occurring against us this year, you guys prevailed and we are so PROUD of each and every one of you. You didn't give up, you kept working hard and you SURVIVED. I know that a lot of you had to change from the type of product you were used to hauling, changed your traffic lanes, and your time at home, all of this did not go unnoticed and we say THANK YOU for all that you did and for the sacrifices you made during these times.

Now, let's talk about what we see for the rest of the year and what we think will be happening. Home building and construction is not what we had hoped that it would be, but it is better than what we have experienced in the past few years, we are getting signs from the steel industry that things are beginning to change in their favor and we should start seeing some increases in shipments very soon, the aluminum industry is still going strong and we see many opportunities in this industry due to some of the automobile manufactures going to aluminum instead of steel. Our outside sales and inside sales teams are working hard to find shippers in areas that we have a need for more shippers and they are constantly looking for dedicated, year round, driver friendly shippers that we can partner up with. There are many things that have to be watched in order to be successful, one of those that is a major priority is our deadhead. Deadhead miles are miles that we run empty and no one is getting paid, the things that we experience due to deadhead is fuel cost, maintenance cost, more exposure and your time. Please join me in our campaign to reduce deadhead; it is going to take all of us working together to drive this number down. There is NO doubt in my mind that we can drive our deadhead down and we all will make more $money$. Let's get it DONE.

A few things before I will let you enjoy the rest of this newsletter; Be Careful out on the roadways, watch for the other drivers, always Drive Defensively, Show your Professionalism on the road and off, and protect your CSA scores.

News from Operations

I always stress to drivers that the most important part of anyone's life is communication. It doesn't matter if it is business or personal. Over the years I have seen the most successful drivers be the ones who have open lines of communication with their fleet manager. In today's world we have a wide range of devices to communicate. You can contact by land line phone, cell phone, mobilcomm or text. It hasn't been that many years ago that a home/business phone was your only form of communication. With that being said I want to urge drivers to always keep us updated on what is going on out on the road and eta/pta changes that need to be made. It allows us the opportunity to keep customers in the loop and get you loaded/unloaded at the proper time.

As important as communication is I think that relying on your fleet manager is high on that list of importance as well. Our most successful independent contractors are generally the ones who allow the fleet manager to help them plan for that week. It is impossible for us to drive your truck and it is impossible for you to see what freight is best for that day/week. Some lanes may change from day to day or hour to hour. Your fleet manager will have that information and are in the loop as to the lanes that are best. I guarantee you that the fleet manager is working to make you successful because at the end of the day your success will determine their success. So...I would inquire to their expertise each day before you make decisions. Remember...it is our intention to work hard for you so you can be profitable at your job!

Thanks for all of your hard work and your families for their sacrifice.

Safety Department News

We just finished the nationwide DOT 72 Hour Blitz that the FMCSA held from June 2nd thru June 4th. We'd like to salute our drivers who endured these roadside inspections and passed with no violations. A lot of these roadside inspections were full, "Level 1" inspections. You did a great job. Prior to the 72 Hour Blitz our company took some proactive steps, especially with maintenance, to make certain that our drivers and their equipment were in good shape and well maintained. We appreciate those company drivers, lease purchase and lease maintenance drivers who took advantage of "mid trip" inspections and truck washes. Also, we want to thank our independent contractors (Owner Operators) who were "all in" with this program.

You can expect more roadside inspections out there on the road. Never let your guard down! Just because the "annual inspection blitz" is over doesn't mean that law enforcement and State DOTs are going to reduce inspections. Statistics and good ole common sense show that summertime and fall are high potential seasons for roadside checks. Everyone, including the DOT, enjoy being outside and taking in some sunshine. Be focused and be ready.

What's the purpose of roadside inspections? Is it just a smoke screen to mask income for the states? I know what you're thinking. Is it just a way to be harassed by the authorities out there while you're just hauling freight? You know, think about it this way. It's Safety. It's really designed to protect your safety and everyone that you're sharing the road with. Think about it. Yes, there are some bad apples out there. Don't let that effect you. Show them that you're a WTI professional driver in every sense of the word.

Summertime is here. It's important that you drink plenty of fluids every day. I personally recommend a lot of water. Our bodies need water. Sometimes a person can become dehydrated and not even know it. It's hot out there. Even though it's hot, make sure that you don't take any shortcuts on wearing your protective equipment. We've received a couple of complaints from customers, both shippers and receivers, on drivers not wearing their reflective vests, safety glasses or hard hats. Can't take shortcuts with this, guys. That gear is for your protection and most every facility is going to require that you have it on. Check your ppe. If you need replacements make sure that you contact your manager or the Safety Department.

Stay safe this summer!

Heat stroke can kill! Take time to cool down & hydrate

Summer is upon us and with the rising temperatures; your chance of falling victim to heat illness also rises. There are 3 stages of heat related illness; heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heat stroke.

What are heat cramps?

Heat cramps are the first stage of heat-related illness. Heat cramps are characterized by involuntary muscle spasms/cramps, profuse sweating, and dizziness. Heat cramps can be difficult to pinpoint because your pulse and respiration may be normal.

Treatment:

- Get out of the heat, sit in a cool place
- Massage cramps with ice
- Drink water or diluted electrolyte drinks
- Stretch

What is heat exhaustion?

Heat exhaustion is a heat-related illness that can happen when your body is dehydrated and you've been exposed to high temperatures for a long period of time. Signs are heavy sweating, weakness, dizziness, cool/clammy skin, nausea, headache and fast heartbeat and or rapid, shallow breathing.

Treatment:

- Get out of the heat quickly. Rest in an air-conditioned tractor. If you can't get inside, find a cool, shady place.
- Remove wet clothing
- Drink plenty of water or other fluids. Do NOT drink alcohol or caffeinated drinks.
- Take a cool shower or bath, or put cool water on your skin.

If you do not feel better within 30 minutes, call your doctor. If heat exhaustion is not treated, it can progress to heatstroke.

What is heat stroke?

Heat stroke happens when your body temperature reaches 104 degrees or higher due to high heat, high humidity and/or long periods of strenuous exercise. Unlike heat exhaustion, heat stroke is a much more serious and can cause harm to your organs and brain, or even death if medical attention is not available right away. Signs are high fever, dizziness, severe headache, lack of sweating, nausea/vomiting, rapid heartbeat, shallow breathing and confusion.

If you're showing signs of heat stroke or think someone else might have heatstroke, get medical attention right away or call 911. Here are some things you can do to help cool down while waiting for help:

- Get someone to help you into an air-conditioned building, or a cool, shady place.
- Remove any clothing you don't need to help cool down.
- Get someone to fan you while wetting the skin with water.
- Put ice packs in the following areas — armpits, groin, neck and back.

Preventing heat illness

To avoid heat illness try following tips while working outdoors:

- Wear lightweight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothing.
- Protect yourself from the sun by wearing a hat.
- Use sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or more.
- Drink plenty of water before going outside.
- Drink extra water all day.
- Replace salt lost through sweating by drinking diluted electrolyte drinks.

More on Hydration:

According to the American College of Sports Medicine, to avoid dehydration, active people should drink at least 16- 20 ounces of fluid (water or a sugar free electrolyte drink) one to two hours before an outdoor activity. After that, you should consume 6 to 12 ounces of fluid every 10 to 15 minutes that you are outside. When you are finished with the activity, you should drink more. How much more? To replace what you have lost: at least another 16 to 24 ounces (2- 3 cups).

Take-A-Few-Minutes

If you stand outside for a few minutes you will realize that it is summer in the South!! So we know what that means, it means the temperatures will be taking a toll on everything on your equipment. Keeping this in mind, it only takes a few minutes every day to find a potential problem that can cost you downtime.

- Air pressure most critical point in tire life. Not checking tire pressure can lead to casing failures, blowouts, irregular wear, or waiting for a service truck on the side of the road. Owners & Lease Purchase /Lease Maintenance Operators as you check your truck make sure you are checking the trailer tires for the same things. Drive & trailer tires 105psi—steer-105psi—super single—110 psi
- Pre-trip & post trip, before you start your day and when you finish up your day these two actions that you can take is what can make you successful or if you fail to do this you will not be successful.

- If you do have any kind of truck or trailer problem, call the maintenance department immediately. We have a great group of people that work very hard each day to handle any kind of breakdown. When we are contacted we immediately go to work looking for the right place to get help to get you back on the road.
 - Engine issues— need to be caught early, watch for temps on your gauges rising and excessive coolant or oil usage.
 - P.M. services goals for trucks are set at 25,000 miles, so be aware of when your truck is due or coming due so we can work it out with your fleet manager. Trailer p.m. goals are set at a 90 day interval.
 - Be sure that you have you're a/c system checked when you come in for a service; you cannot survive these hot days and nights with your ac working properly.
- Only took a few minutes to read, but can save you hours in downtime!!!!

V.P. of Maintenance

The Button Pusher

I have a ten-year-old granddaughter named Madison, and she has brought me so much joy. Honestly, she has also, taught me a lot. For a while, my mother lived with my sister Sheila. One Sunday, the whole family was going to get together including all my sons and their families. Madison loved Grandma Benton (my mother)! When Madison walked into the room and saw Grandma Benton, she went over to the chair where Grandma was sitting to give her a hug, and then sat with her for a while.

Grandma Benton, at that time, wore an alarm around her neck that was connected to the alarm system of the house. Should Grandma have difficulty and need help, she could press the button on the necklace which would notify the security company. However, the security company was the only one who could hear the alarm. Madison was admiring the necklace, and none of us realized that she was pressing the button over and over sending out an alarm. The security company called to ask if Mrs. Benton was okay. Indeed she was okay; it was just that someone was pushing her button.

Who is your button pusher? We all have people who push our buttons. It can be the controlling boss, the distant husband, the adult child, the difficult co-worker, the parent who can't let go, or the gossip at church that causes division. I hate to say this, but there are even times we are "stuck" with button-pushers who will be a part of our lives for a loooooong time, but we don't have to allow them to ruin our lives. Grandma did not stop enjoying her family or the day because someone pushed her button, and the reason was: her secure connection. Jesus had button-pushers waiting in line, but He always spoke and reacted based on who He was and to whom He was connected.

I have watched so many people rant and rave in real life, in church, and on Facebook about their "button-pusher." I am still shocked to see on a social media, like Facebook, that the button-pusher is identified for all to see. Yet, this does not bring peace. I used to scream at or plot against my button-pushers causing my emotions to get out of hand and ruin my day. In some cases, that is exactly what the button-pusher wanted. In other cases, it just made me seethe longer and dislike myself. One of the lessons button-pushers taught me was that I don't have to attend every argument to which I am invited. My peace means more than that.

I have a direct connection with God. I've now learned to allow God to speak peace to my heart, to calm me down. Like the company that monitored Grandma Benton, God is out for my good, and He will keep me secure. He can calm my spirit when I hurt so deeply. He can help me love myself. He can lead me to relationships that help me grow and enjoy the journey. He can tell me when it is time to walk away. He is my security company. Security in the Lord is knowing that you completely trust Him and that He will work all things out according to His will for your life

Consider it pure joy, my brothers and sisters, whenever you face trials of many kinds, because you know that the testing of your faith produces perseverance. Let perseverance finish its work so that you may be mature and complete, not lacking anything." James 1:2-4

So we say with confidence, "The Lord is my helper; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me?" Hebrews 13:6
